Draft Version

Würzburg, March 27, 2026

Indications for written assignments[1]

1. Cover sheet

Please indicate the following information on your cover sheet: title of your paper, date of submission, the supervising lecturer(s), the Professorship for Adult and Continuing Education, the seminar title, your semester, your own data (full name, address, telephone number, email address, student ID number, subject of studies, and your study semester).

2. Formatting

Before submitting a written paper, please familiarise yourself with the functions of a text processing program. You can use self-study online courses or participate in seminars offered by the University of Würzburg's Information Technology Centre.

Please use the following formatting styles consistently throughout your paper:

- Font size: Arial 11pt. or Times New Roman 12pt.
- Margin: left, right, top, and bottom: 1 inch or 2,54 cm
- Line spacing: 1,5
- Full justification and hyphenation
  Page numbering begins with the introduction. Please use the functions of your text processing program (e.g., Word) accordingly (e.g., section break -> do not link header and footer to previous section).

Please familiarise yourself with how to simplify this guideline using the specific functions of your text processing program.

The tables of contents, tables of figures, list of tables, etc., can be created using the corresponding functions of your word processing program (e.g., Word). Please use style sheets (e.g., "Heading 1") to generate the table of contents automatically (e.g., Document elements -> Table of contents).

The introduction, main body, and conclusion are numbered in the outline. The list of abbreviations, list of tables and figures, bibliography, declaration of originality, and appendix are not numbered. Appendices are structured using capital letters (e.g., “Appendix A,” “Appendix B,” etc.). Please ensure you can submit one continuous document only in PDF format at the online Moodle course WueCampus.

You can only upload one PDF file AND a single Word document to WueCampus for electronic submission. Please ensure that you can combine multiple files into a single PDF file and a single Word document. The university's information technology centre provides you with software via StudiSoft (for example, Adobe Acrobat Pro) and also offers various courses in the course store. Please attend these if you are not yet confident using the relevant software.

3. Gender-appropriate use of language

Please consider how you formulate your texts with gender-neutral language in mind. You can find the latest information, including guidelines from the University of Würzburg, on the following website: https://www.uni-wuerzburg.de/fileadmin/33120300/Pruefungsamt/Formulare/Allgemeine_Formulare/Versicherung_zur_Leistungserbringung/20231127_Declaration_of_authorship.pdf
Information in English are provided by University of Hannover: https://www.chancenvielfalt.uni-hannover.de/en/chancengleichheit/geschlechter-und-diversitaetsgerechte-sprache/gender-sensitive-language

4. Usage of foreign words

Please make sure that you are using foreign words correctly. If you are unsure about their usage, please look them up in special dictionaries or lexicons.

5. Citation and bibliography

Citations should be consistent. Use a citation style (e.g., APA, DGPs, Harvard). Please observe the relevant rules of academic work (citation, references, etc.) and be sure to attend the Writing Centre courses if you are not yet familiar with them.

You can cite lectures as follows, for example:

- In the text: (cf. Moos 2014)
- In the bibliography: Moos, S. (2014): Die VHS Würzburg als pädagogische Institution (The Würzburg Adult Education Center as an educational institution). The lecture was given on June 17, 2014, during a field visit.

You can cite websites as follows, for example:

- In the text: (cf. VHS Würzburg 2014)
- In the bibliography: VHS Würzburg (2014): Our program. Accessed on June 18, 2014. Available at https://www.vhs-wuerzburg.info/programm

Information brochures/flyers can be cited as follows, for example:

- In the text: (cf. VHS Würzburg 2013)
- In the bibliography: VHS Würzburg (2013): VHS Guide. Flyer.

If you have several references from the same author and the same year, sort them in lowercase letters according to the year, ensuring that the text and bibliography correspond. For example: VHS 2014a and VHS 2014b.

If you use passages from other authors as quotations in your own work, you should cite them as follows:

> "The principles outlined for anti-racist organisational development in educational institutions are characterised by a complexity that challenges not only linear knowledge repositories and one-dimensional ways of perceiving the world, but also a form of solidarity that perpetuates power structures. As demonstrated in this article, the mechanisms of entanglement described are also reflected in formal and non-formal educational institutions and contribute to the persistence of racialised exclusions." (Danquah/Egetenmeyer 2025, p. 230, translated from German with DeepL)[4]

When you make changes to the AI translation, instead of writing "translated from German using DeepL", you might write "translated from German with support of DeepL". In the footnote, you can specify whether you have simply checked individual words or made more extensive changes to the text:

> "The principles outlined for anti-racist organisational development in educational institutions are characterised by a complexity that challenges not only linear knowledge repositories and one-dimensional ways of perceiving the world. They also show a form of solidarity that perpetuates power structures. As demonstrated in this paper, the mechanisms of entanglement identified are also reflected in formal and non-formal educational institutions and contribute to the persistence of racialised exclusions." (Danquah/Egetenmeyer 2025, p. 230, translated from German with support of DeepL)[5]

If you are translating a text you have written in another language into the language of the examination, please include the original text in a footnote. If you are doing this not just for individual sentences but for the entire paragraph, you can insert the footnote at the end of each paragraph.[6]

As AI translation tools that comply with data protection regulations do not provide links for sharing, it is necessary to include the original texts in the footnotes when translating.

7. Declaration of Authorship

Please note that we can only evaluate your work if you include a signed Declaration of Authorship. This will not be requested at a later date. Without a Declaration of Authorship, your work will be considered "not submitted." For digital submissions on WueCampus, please attach a scan of the handwritten, signed Declaration of Authorship to your electronic version. For printed submissions, a handwritten signature (wet ink) is required. For paper submissions, scanned, photocopied or digitally scanned signatures cannot be accepted. Please note that the digital AND printed versions must be submitted to the Professorship for Adult and Continuing Education by the deadline. Please note that your exam will be considered "not submitted" if you submit it incompletely or after the deadline.

Please use the current Declaration of Authorship from the Examination Office. You can find this under the heading "Declaration of Authorship (theses/papers)" here: https://www.uni-wuerzburg.de/en/studying-at-jmu/examination-office/forms/

Original text: "If you translate your own text from another language into the language of the portfolio, please include a footnote referring to the original text. If you are translating entire paragraphs rather than individual sentences, you can insert the footnote at the end of each paragraph."

8. Postal and electronic submission

Please fasten your written paper with a binder strip and place it in a simple cover, such as an envelope. Avoid elaborate bindings (e.g., folders or binders). Please print your written paper double-sided if possible. The paper must be submitted by the specified date (date of receipt).

- in printed form by post or by handing in to the post room of the University of Würzburg (Emil-Fischer-Weg 70, entrance on the ground floor on the right, 97074 Würzburg) or by dropping it in the mailbox of the Professorship for Adult and Continuing Education (Oswald-Külpe-Weg 82, 3rd floor, left, during the building's opening hours, usually until 6 p.m.)

and

- in electronic form in the "Portal International Master" on WueCampus under "Exams" for the respective lecturers. Please note that submissions must always be made in both file formats (PDF and Word document).

Please do NOT hand in the paper in person at the office of the Professorship for Adult and Continuing Education. Remember to put your name on the envelope as the sender.

If you send the paper by post, use the following address:

Julius-Maximilians-Universität Würzburg
Professur für Erwachsenenbildung/Weiterbildung
Fakultät für Humanwissenschaften
Institut für Pädagogik
Name of the professor
Oswald-Külpe-Weg 82
97074 Würzburg

Please register for the exam on WueStudy on time. Late registration is not possible. Please make sure that you are registered for the correct exam.

Please refer to the announcement on WueStudy regarding the applicable exam submission deadlines for the Professorship of Adult Education/Continuing Education.

Please note that papers received too late by post or not uploaded to WueCampus by the deadline will be considered failed. The correctly completed declaration of authorship based on the Examination Office's current version must be submitted with a handwritten signature (see previous section).

Please upload your paper to the Adult Education Portal (Bachelor), Master International Portal (Master), or WueCampus course room (ERASMUS) as two single files (one PDF file, one Word file). You should find out in advance how to create your work in two single files (PDF and Word). The submission function closes at 11:55 pm on the submission deadline. Your submission will be considered on time if you upload your work to the WueCampus room within the specified period.

The submission of papers to guest lecturers and instructors who do not regularly teach at the University of Würzburg will be discussed separately in the respective seminar.

9. Compensation for Disadvantages

Students who have been granted compensation for disadvantages by the Examination Committee must contact the seminar instructor immediately after the start of the seminar – but at least 6 weeks before the submission deadline for the examination – to arrange an adapted schedule. For questions regarding the granting of compensation for disadvantages, please contact the Information and Advisory Centre for Students with Disabilities and Chronic Illnesses (KIS: https://www.uni-wuerzburg.de/chancengleichheit/kis/).

10. Illness/Inability to Submit the Examination

If you fall ill during the examination period and require an extension of the examination deadline, it is your responsibility to provide the examiner with credible evidence of your inability to sit the examination. To this end, you will need a medical certificate of incapacity to take the examination (in German: Prüfungsunfähigkeitsbescheinigung) issued by a specialist practice based in the Federal Republic of Germany. A certificate from a general practitioner will only be accepted in exceptional cases.

Please note that the decision as to whether the illness constitutes an impairment of your ability to sit the examination lies with the examiner. It is therefore not sufficient for a doctor to issue a certificate of incapacity to sit the examination. Rather, you must release the doctor from their duty of confidentiality as part of your duty to inform them, in order to obtain a certificate of incapacity to sit the examination containing the following information:

- Information about yourself, including date of birth and semester address
- Ideally, the designation of the illness
- Information on the impairment of performance and the symptoms of the illness
- Information on whether this constitutes a significant impairment of your performance capacity, or only a temporary performance limitation due to a daily condition (exam stress does not constitute an impairment)

- Information on the inability to sit oral and written examinations, including justification

The medical certificate of incapacity to take the examination (in German: Prüfungsunfähigkeitsbescheinigung) is usually issued in German by your doctor. Please submit the certificate to the examiner (personalised email address) for data protection. You will then, if applicable, receive information about the new examination deadline. If the examiner is absent, please contact: lehrplanung-erwachsenenbildung@uni-wuerzburg.de.

11. Pregnancy and Breastfeeding Students

Pregnant and breastfeeding women enjoy special protection under the German Maternity Protection Act and the Occupational Health and Safety Act. The relevant rules also apply to students.

It is advisable to provide formal information on this situation, so that the university can ensure the protection mechanism. Further information is provided on the website of the Faculty of Human Sciences: https://www.hw.uni-wuerzburg.de/en/teaching-and-learning/pregnant-or-breastfeeding-students/

12. Evaluation criteria and Grading

The evaluation and grading of your written assignment are based on the following criteria, depending on your level of study and study programme.

Grading of Bachelor students

1,0	excellent	Students address a clearly formulated and focused research question (or have a clear objective). They tackle this in a structured manner, taking into account the current literature on the subject. Their treatment of the research question demonstrates an original perspective. Key terms are defined and used consistently. The academic argumentation shows very few weaknesses, and there are no formal errors in the academic work (e.g. references, sources, and quotations).
1,3	Very good	Students address a clearly formulated and focused research question (or have a clear objective). They tackle this in a structured manner, taking into account the current literature on the subject. The treatment of the research question demonstrates an independent perspective. Key terms are defined and used consistently. The academic argumentation shows few weaknesses, and there are no formal errors in the academic work (e.g. references, sources, and quotations).
1,7 2,0 2,3	Good	Students address a research question or objective in a structured manner, taking into account the current literature on the subject. Key terms are defined and show only minor inconsistencies in their use. There are only a few formal errors relating to academic practice (e.g. references, sources, and quotations).
2,7 3,0 3,3	Satisfactory	The paper has a research question or objective and a structure for addressing them. The relevant literature has been taken into account, at least in broad terms. Errors in the methodology of academic work (e.g. references, sources, quotations) and in academic argumentation remain within acceptable limits.
3,7 4,0	Sufficient	The paper has a research question or objective and a structure for addressing it. The relevant literature has been taken into account in a clear and appropriate manner, at least in broad terms. Errors relating to academic practice (e.g. references, sources, quotations) and academic argumentation remain within acceptable limits.

5,0	Failed	Texts are written without a clear research question or objective, with little structure and/or without reference to the current academic discourse within the discipline. There are formal errors relating to academic practice (e.g. references, sources, citations) and academic argumentation.

Grading of Master's students

1,0	Very good/ excellent	Students address a clearly defined research question or objective. They approach this in a highly structured manner, taking into account the current literature on the subject. The work clearly demonstrates an original and critical perspective. Key terms are precisely defined and used consistently. The academic argumentation is very good, and there are no formal errors in the academic work (e.g. references, sources, and quotations).
1,3	Very good	Students address a specific research question or pursue a clearly defined objective. They approach this in a structured manner, taking into account the current literature on the subject. The work clearly demonstrates an independent and critical perspective. Key terms are precisely defined and used consistently. The academic argumentation shows no weaknesses, and there are no formal errors in the academic work (e.g. references, sources, and quotations).
1,7 2,0 2,3	Good	Students address a specific research question or objective. They approach this in a structured manner, taking into account the current literature on the subject, and formulate the research question from their own perspective. Key terms are defined and used consistently. The academic argumentation contains only a few weaknesses, and there are no formal errors in the academic work (e.g. references, sources, and quotations).
2,7 3,0 3,3	Satisfactory	Students have developed their own research question or objective. They address this in a structured manner, drawing on the current literature on the subject and incorporating their own perspectives. Key terms are defined and show only minor inconsistencies in their use. There are hardly any formal errors relating to academic practice (e.g. references, sources, and quotations).
3,7 4,0	Sufficient	The paper has a research question or objective and a structure for addressing it. The research question and structure of the paper still contain some acceptable weaknesses. The weaknesses in the literature reviewed are not particularly significant. regarding the literature and resources are not particularly severe
5,0	Failed	The texts are written without a clear research question or objective, with little structure and/or without reference to current discourse within the discipline. There are formal errors relating to academic practice (e.g. references, sources, and quotations) and in the academic argumentation.
